Money in Draft Horses.

We have lately had a great deal to say on the subject of the profit there is in good draft horses, as opposed to the lack of it in the scrubs, such as are grown by the majority of Missouri farmers. Our contemporary, the Farmers' Review, has been making a sull investigation of this general subject, and reaches some conclusions which we consider of great value on this point, and will quote from extensively.

The Review sent out inquiries into all the counties of the principal Western and Northwestern States in regard to the development of the draft horse breeding in dustry, and the relative cost and value of . serubs and grade horses. From the reports received they were able to make up a very voluminous and nodoubt trachful report. For our purpose, however, we shall be content with comparing the condition of things in this branch of farming in the State of Missouri, with the same in Iowa. In many respects these two States are similar. They are adjoining States, in a large portion of them the soil and In lows the farmers seem to be far more progressive in a general way than in Missouri. They have gone into dairying and breeding improved stock to a far greater extent than in Missouri.

In suming up its conclusions as to the different States, the Review has the fol-

The summary of our reports from this State place the selling price of the good horse at $185 as a general average when compared with an average of $90 for the common horse. This comparson of figarea should surely prove the best possible evidence that the enthusiasm in Iowa over the horse breeding business is based upon a solid foundation the knowledge that there is an average of 75 per cent, to be made by breeding grades instead of scrub; or at least 60 per cent. after deducting the comparatively high service fee of a pure bred horse. Attention is being paid not only to draft horses The breeders are commencing to inquire for good coach sires. For instances, our Allamakee reporter says: "What this country needs most at present is good coach stallions. Farmers are fast learning the advantage of breeding grades. The county above mentioned report. "Probably one-third of the farmers still use scrubs, but are getting educated in the right direction." In Audabon county, which was for the greater part first opened for settlement about ten years ago, the native stock was of very inferior quality. The first and second crosses are consequently smaller than an outsider might expect. Yet our reporter says "The quality of stock is improving greatly every year, and grade coits from purebred draft, borses are hard to buy, while common work horses are hunting buyers." He gives the grade an advantage of $50 in price over the scrub and 300 hundred pounds in weight. From Humboldt county comes the following: There are some farmers here who still breed to grade stallions, but they are a class of people slow to appreciate advancement. and are always distanced by their more of people always quoting my father's enterprising neighbors. They are a class ways,' whether in farming, stock raising, school matters." The old "rule of thumb" ideas about horse raising must in these days be buried along with the dead past. That's where the cross roads scrub sire should be consigned. Harrison county energetically reports There are as yet three fourths of the farmers breeding to grade or scrub sires, but we are on the boom for better blood in our county, and intend to wipe out the dunghill stallion as soon as possible." Butler is truly antiquated; only one pure-bred stallion, and common berses selling at 230 to 815 per head. Their weight is given as from 706 to 800 pounds. Our reporter there says: "There is nothing better than half blood scallions in this as every one seems to take a deep interest in improving their stock." Our Texas county correspondent says: "I am very sorry that there are no draft stallions in use in this county, but such is the case at present. Farmers are taking some more interest in good horses now than a few years age. They see the difference in price of a good and a poor for the purposes expressed in said deed of true horse."

If the concluding sentence above is true, we hope to see some progress made in this line soon; but why the farmers should so stand in their own right and be so low to adopt what they cannot fail to see is to their own interest, we do not understand. We trust that the figures given below showing comparative cost and profit between scrubs and good grades will have some good effect.

The report from Iowa shows very active work upon the part of importers, and great intelligence and enterprise upon the part of the farmers. In regard to Missouri it says this:

This State, except in the ruising of mules, trotters, saidle and race horses, is away behind. When it comes to breeding horses for farm work, the scrubscens to be the most popular, and next to him in estimation is the grade.
